The aim of this thread is not to get anyone banned, so please, let's not have that, okay?

What I would like to say:
Future, I understand how you feel. I have a lot of problems irl too. The thing is that your offline life is NOT and is NEVER an excuse to make rude and/or unnecessary arguments. I'm not going to sit here and discuss WHY they're rude or unnecessary - I'm pretty sure you understand that - but you have to control it. If you can't control it, take it out elsewhere. We're human too. We have problems. You don't know what's happening in OUR lives when you make those comments. The goal of these forums were to connect open-minded people who had a common interest, so please, stay open-minded. You can't take your anger out on us. Please reconsider your actions and change them.

P.S. Don't get offended when people won't listen to "the gifted ten-year-old". Most people here are older than you...

For someone who always arrives at threads after it's all gone down and things have been deleted- what happened?

@Ghost, don't mean to bother you, but could you go onto the ML sign-up thread, and accept my forms? They are on the last page...sorry for bothering you.

Aether got banned for joke trolling, mist gave permission. Future started being rude about it. People started calling her bluff. So she started using her life and 'mental issues' as an excuse and more people called her out so she started acting butt-hurt over it and started "misspelling." on her posts.

i have interacted with future maybe three (3) times, and i don't hand much to say but, one thing that stands out to me, as a person who doesn't like feeling uncomfortable with my opinions and in general and lives to argue, i disagree with their method of silencing other viewpoints by pulling out a weapon or crying. Another opinion is not a personal attack, and it being met with hostility is the reason people will yell and argue back. You can disagree, what I assume your scythe entails, but please, for the sake of people feeling okay with voicing their feelings (and, by extension, standing up for what they believe) do not threaten them or say they've ruined your lives if they disagree on something like syntax.
And, uh, relating to the scythe thing: Are you trying to make people fear discussing with you?

@Ghost: Apparently Hootsie created a thread saying Aether should be unbanned, and Future flamed the thread and got super mad. Or something. I've only seen it after the posts were deleted.

I don't fully remember, but it was something about only caring Aether was banned because they're popular.

Then Future got mad and lashed out, some people called her rude, she tried to defend herself by talking about her anger issues and such, and they were still picking on her. She even gave up on proper spelling. It was bad.

I didn't see all of it, but when it was starting, Hootsie made a post about unbanning Aether, and someone said something about how she was only doing it because Aether was one of her "popular little friends" Then Future came and got mad at that person, and other people got mad at Future. I missed the actual main part, but that was how it started I'm pretty sure.

Guys, I know she's really rude sometimes. But, she probably has reasons, granted she should not take them out on us. But, she should try to be nice more often when angry. (~~I kinda should too...~~)

I understand that she has real life issues- I do too. Right now I'm dealing with the possible death of a close friend. I'm angry, and sad, and confused. But I'm doing my best to continue being kind to others. Being rude will not make anything better. Kindness will.
